Sunday Family Connections

The tradition of giving gifts at Christmas is thought by some to be rooted in the gift giving of the Magi. In many cultures, gifts are not exchanged at Christmas, but rather on the feast of the Epiphany. Whenever you exchange your Christmas gifts, take some time to reflect on this tradition of gift giving at Christmas. Think of the best gift you have received. What was it? What made it special? Was it the gift itself, the thought that went into it, or the person who gave it to you?

Read today's Gospel, Matthew 2:1-12. The gifts of the Magi—gold, frankincense, and myrrh—have come to be understood as symbols of Christ's royalty, divinity, and eventual suffering and death. They are special because in giving them, the Magi acknowledge who Jesus was to be: our Savior. We pray that we will acknowledge Jesus as Savior in all that we do and say. Conclude by singing together "We Three Kings."

Spirituality of the Readings -
Solemnity of the Epiphany of the Lord
January 5, 2025

King?

The Wise Men, or "Magi," cross into one more kingdom in their long journey. Courteously they visit the monarch of that kingdom, not knowing he was the infamous Herod.

I suppose every amenity took place: formal welcome, diplomatic over-do, huge meals, fine drinks. Such excesses must take place, even in a commonplace kingdom.

Finally, when the moment arrives, our Magi pose the question that is so much on their minds. "Where is the newborn king of the Jews? We have read the signs and know of his birth." They trust Herod for the truth, since, obviously, this infant will be the next in line, replacing Herod.

What seems like a sincere question strikes terror into the Herodian heart. So he maintains his diplomatic balance, temporizing with a promise to find the answer, and skillfully ends the meeting for that night.

But, within him are the words, Newborn King? No, no, no! I AM THE KING! My lineage is the answer to this menacing child. Herod's insides shout for him to do something!

Do something!

He goes to the chief priests and scribes. He charms them with a seemingly idle interest, an "honest" question. Do you experts, busy studying day and night, do you know anything about the predicted Messiah figure we used to hope for? If he were to be born today, I wonder, where might that be?

"In Bethlehem of Judea," they respond, "where the great King David was born." These experts know the scriptures well, as Herod does not. The Messiah will be David's successor, shepherd of the people Israel, fulfillment of everything the Jewish people have awaited for centuries. The Herodian head swirls.

At last he forms a plan! Kill him.

Herod will identify the town to these Magi and they will search out and find the baby for him! He makes his way across the halls and utters the words:

"Bethlehem is the place! The child is in Bethlehem!

All you have to do is find him. Oh, and of course, let me know where he is. Why? So that I too may do him homage."

Death is the homage Herod has in mind.

His lust for power will banish the command of love, in order for him to stay in control. He is most willing to compete directly even with God and with Christ. He is accepting in advance the same deal Satan will offer to Jesus in the desert thirty years later.

"You can control the whole world, if you will only fall down and worship me. Help me defeat God."

Satan was a power-monger too.

The funny thing is that, for Jesus, "power" is not at all the same thing Herod and Satan are grabbing for. They want to become bigger and bigger, to out-stretch infinity. But his goal is to become less and less, to become transparent, just as love is. Heavy selfish greed cannot demolish this heavenly plan, but it surely can seem to.

To Herod it certainly seems to.

The child's weakness demonstrates what God has in mind as an answer to evil: tender, unfearing openness to love.

In our sinfulness, we scoff at such a plan. Mary, Joseph, and Jesus will never win out, will they? Evil will triumph in the end, won't it? The cross will do what Herod could not, but that Satan could.

Will it?

Check out Christmas!
